TALK OF THE TOWN

John McKee and Samuel Crawford, who have been visiting relatives in Barre and Westerville since Christmas, returned yesterday to their home in Leeds, P. Q.

"Money talks." Christmas club checks talk more, for they are the result of the small change that would not be saved if one did not have a Christmas account at the Barre Savings Bank & Trust Co.

Reports from the City hospital this forenoon indicated that the condition of William R. Dewey, a Central Vermont railroad brakeman, who sustained an injury in a mishap yesterday, appears to be improving, although he will not be discharged from the hospital until his physicians are assured that no untoward results will develop from a clot of blood which formed at the base of the occipital bone.

Few changes are recorded in the winter timetable issued by the Central Vermont railroad yesterday and insofar as local patrons of the road are concerned minor changes tending to better the passenger service are quite ineffective where local travelers are concerned. All of the trains scheduled in the summer table are retained and the hours of arrival and departure remain unchanged. There is an extra train, denoted as the legislature special, for Montpelier, but Barre travelers for the most part probably will not be in a position to take advantage of the boon. The new timetable became effective on New Year's day.

Chocolate colored silk hose, $1.13, at Abbott's.

For the best prices bring your raw furs to W. E. Best, Plainfield, Vt.

Mrs. George Brown and daughter of St. Johnsbury are visiting at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret McCarthy of Brook street, and with Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Bassett street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Neal Emerson, who were married in New Columbia, N. H., Dec. 26, returned to the city yesterday after visiting for a few days with Mr. Emerson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Emerson, in Lancaster, N. H. They have leased an apartment in Keith avenue and Mr. Emerson has resumed his duties as a driver in the fire department.

Someone saw smoke billowing through the basement apertures at the new annex of the Howland building in Keith avenue last evening and after notifying the janitor, David Farrand, summoned members of the fire department by telephone. The auto chemical truck left the station at 9:10 o'clock. When some of the regulars ascended the basement stairs of the annex they saw a small heater comfortably radiating some of the heat that will be necessary to dry the plastering and cement floor. There was fire in the stove, but nowhere else in the basement, although a fraction of an inch had compelled the smoke to seek egress from the building by short cuts. The firemen returned to their quarters without resorting to the use of chemicals.
